Archdiocese of Washington*

Don Bosco Cristo Rey High School is

a Catholic college-preparatory school grades 9-12 for young men and women from the Washington, DC metropolitan area who have the need and motivation to help earn their own tuition money through an innovative Corporate Work Study Program (CWSP).

Our rigorous educational program prepares our graduates for college with the Christian values essential for a successful and fulfilling life.

Don Bosco Cristo Rey High School is

looking for students who have low or limited financial resources but dream of going to college and want to receive a great educational opportunity.

We make our college prep education affordable through our CWSP which is a key part of the educational experience at DBCR High School.

All students work one full day a week, 5 days a month, at sponsoring companies such as law firms, banks, hospitals, universities, and other professional corporate partners in order to earn and fund a major portion of the cost of his or her education.

Don Bosco Cristo Rey High School is a unique partnership between the Archdioceses of Washington, the Salesians of Don Bosco and the Cristo Rey Network of Schools.

Just a brief explanation of who is who:

- The Archdioceses of Washington governs the Catholic parishes/institutions in this area.
- The Salesians of Don Bosco is the second largest Catholic religious order in the world.
- The Cristo Rey Network comprises 26 high schools that provide a quality, Catholic, college preparatory education to urban young people who live in communities with limited educational options. Member schools utilize a rigorous academic model, supported with effective instruction, to prepare students with a broad range of academic abilities for college. The schools utilize an innovative Corporate Work Study Program to help make private education affordable to students who might not otherwise have access to a quality education. Currently there are 26 Cristo Rey schools in the country in 25 cities in 17 states and Washington DC.
